Rugadh is thogadh Catriona ann am Bràdhagair, Leòdhas, agus tha i air a bhith ag obair ann an dàimh phoblach, ann an naidheachdas, agus Foghlam tro Mheadhan na Gàidhlig. Rinn Catriona mòran dhen obair gus £1.5m a thogail airson Grinneabhat ath-leasachadh. Tha i a' cumail oirre a bhith an lùib a' bhuidhinn mar Rùnaire agus mar shaor-thoileach.

Catriona was born and brought up in Bragar and has worked in public relations, in journalism and in Gaelic medium education. Catriona undertook much of the fundraising work for the £1.5m redevelopment of Grinneabhat and continues to be closely involved in the running of the organisation, as Secretary and as a volunteer.

Ath-leasachadh Sgoil Bhràdhagair, mar a thàinig am beachd, agus mar a thàinig e gu bith

le Catriona Choinnich Isaac

Tha àite cruinneachaidh coimhersnachd agus cultarail gu math soirbheachail ann am Bràdhagair, air taobh siar Leòdhais. Bidh failte bhlàth romhaibh aig Grinneabhat agus sluagh a' dol ann gu tric son cèilidh. Gheibh sibh cofaigh agus grèim bìdh ann, faodaigh sibh a dhol gu tachartas ann, obair ealain a rannsachadh, no tàmh na h-oidhche a ghabhail ann an aon de ceithir seòmraichean cadail. Tha an t-àite cho soirbheachail 's gu bheil daoine a' faighneachd ciamar a thàinig e gu bith?

The redevelopment of Bragar school, where the idea came from, and how it came into being

by Catriona Mairi Campbell

The village of Bragar on the west side of the Isle of Lewis has a flourishing community and cultural centre named Grinneabhat. It is an open and welcoming place, a place where people can meet and have a cèilidh, a place which draws people in. People visit to go to a social occasion, an art event or a class, for lunch in the café or to stay in one of the four guest bedrooms. Such is its success that visitors often ask how the centre came about, and why in Bragar?

Chan ann le turchertas a thachair ionad Ghrinneabhat idir. Smaoinich muinntir sgìre Bhràdhagair agus Àrnoil mu dè bha dhìth orra, agus chaidh comataidh beag a stèidheachadh airson na beachdan aca a thoirt gu buil. Chaidh coimhead gu mionaideach air dè na seirbheisean a b' urrainnear a libhrigeadh à togalach na seann sgoile, an togalach a dh' aithnichreas sinn mar Ghrinneabhat an-diugh. Dh' obraich sinn air an seòrsa ath-uidheamachadh a dh'fheumadh tachairt air an àite agus dè an coltas a bhiodh air nuair a bha e deiseil.

B' e buille chruaidh a bh' ann an dùnadh na sgoile dha Bràdhagair agus Àrnol ann an 2012. Bha an sgìre mu thràth air fulang le dùnadh Oifis a' Phuist, dùnadh ionad nan seann daoine agus cròileagan na cloinne. Chaidh seirbheisean a thoirt air falbh air sgàth 's sàbhaladh airgid le ùighdarrasan ionadail agus nàiseanta, ach gun ghuth air an droch bhuaidh a bh' aig an seo air a' choimhairsnachd.

A bharrachd air an sin, bha muinntir cheann a tuath Leòdhais air bliadhna chan a chosg a' sabaid an aghaidh biast mhòr de thuath gaoith a bha dol a sgrios na mòintich aca – glinn, cnuic, fraoch, srùthain is uillt, is airighean ar sinsearan – àrainneachd a tha air leth priseil dha na Gàidheil agus dha na h-eoin is ainmhidhean eile a tha a' fuireach ann.

Às dèidh na h-uile, bha daoine airson a thighinn còmhla agus rudeigin a chuidicheadh an sgìre a dhealbh airson Grinneabhat.

The Grinneabhat centre, how it looks and the services and activities it offers, came about because of very deliberate planning within the community. A committee of locals looked at what was needed to sustain and nurture the people of Bragar and Arnol, the two villages served by the building when it was a Primary School. They knew that good, interesting events, activities and services would also interest people further afield, the local reaching out to the national and international.

When the school closed in the summer of 2012, it was the culmination of a series of blows suffered by the area in the previous decade. The Bragar Post Office, the Day Care Centre for the elderly and the children's Nursery all closed. These closures were driven by cost saving priorities decided from afar which had a severe impact on the quality of life in the community, particularly for its youngest and oldest members.

In addition, the community had just spent years fighting off a multinational company backed by local and national governments, who wanted to build a huge industrial windfarm over the North Lewis peatlands – land with great cultural meaning to the indigenous Gaels as well as being of huge environmental significance.

The withdrawal of services, and the threat to our environment, spurred people to get together to imagine what a positive development would look like, and the idea of Grinneabhat was born.

Chaidh Urras Coimhearsnachd Bhràdhagair agus Àrnoil a stèidheachadh airson cothroman sunnd sòisealta agus cinneas eaconamach a leudachadh san sgìre, leis an t-sluagh-ghairm, 'Dòchas, dùthchas agus dualchas'. B' e agus 's e ar n-amas daoine a bhith moiteil às an àite agus às a' chultar aca fhèin.

Às dèidh conaltradh a dhèananamh le muinnir Bhràdhagair agus Àrnoil, bha e follaiseach gun robh feum air àite far am b' urrainn ar seann daoine coinneachadh le chèile agus le daoine eile, gu h-àraidh an òigridh; àite taisbeanaidh a bhith againn airson luchd-ealain às na h-eileanan agus bho air feadh an t-saoghal, le ùidh ann an cànan is cultar nan Gàidheal, a tharraing; seirbheisean a fhrithealadh airson luchd-turas a bheireadh maoin dhan Urras; agus dreuchdan obrach agus obair shaor-thoileach a thabhall do mhuinnitir an àite.

B' e a' chiad dùbhlàan a bha mu choinneamh an Urrais, seann Sgoil Bhràdhagair a cheannach às leth na coimhearsnachd. B' fheudar planaichean gniomh a sgriobhadh, coinneamhan a chumail agus taic airgid a shireadh, ach às dèidh dà bhliadhna shoirbhich leinn, fhuair sinn an togalach agus thug na daoine Grinneabhat air mar ainm, as dèidh loch a tha faisg air làimh.

Cha robh seo ach a' chiad cheum. Chum sinn oirnn a' sireadh ghrantaichean agus fhuair sinn air gu leòr airgid a thogail bhon Chrannchur Nàiseanta airson ailtire agus sgioba-dealbhaidh fhastadh airson ath-leasachadh an togalaich a dhealbh dhuinn. Chuidich buidheann ionadail, Tighean Innse Gall, le comhairle agus taic proifeiseanta air an t-slighe seo.

Chan ann beag a bha an ath dhùbhlàan a bha romhainn. Dh'fheumadh sinn £1.5m a thogail airson an obair leasachaidh a dhèananamh, airgead mòr airson

A community trust, Urras Coimhearsnachd Bhràdhagair agus Àrnoil (UCBA), was set up with a vision of enhancing the social and economic wellbeing of the area, with the Gaelic slogan – dòchas (hope, looking to the future), dùthchas (which takes in place of birth and also hereditary rights and responsibilities) and dualchas (the culture derived from your ancestry). Promoting pride in place was our aim.

After a number of community consultations, five main themes emerged which continue to be the basis of Grinneabhat's work. These themes are reducing social isolation amongst our elderly people by providing a comfortable, welcoming place where they can meet, talk, and share their knowledge and skills with others; providing activities for children and encouraging intergenerational interaction; developing a multi-disciplinary exhibition space and providing facilities for local and visiting artists, writers, musicians and scholars to explore their own practice within a dynamic environment where people, language and land all connect in a way which has been lost in much of modern Britain; opening up the area for visitors while at the same time giving the Urras an income stream; and providing opportunities for paid and voluntary work.

The first challenge for the Urras in 2012 was to gain possession of the now vacant Bragar School building. Meetings were held with national and local development agencies and funding bodies, business plans were written and funding applications made. In 2014 UCBA, on behalf of the community, became the owners of Bragar School. The community chose the name 'Grinneabhat' for the building, calling it after the nearby Loch Grinneabhat.

coimhearsnachd bheag. Ach bha sinn dìcheallach agus deònach obair a dhèanamh agus mu dheireadh thall fhuair sinn an t-airgead, le taing gu h-àraidh dhan Chrannchur Nàiseanta, Urras Robertson, agus diofar mhaoin bhon riaghaltas gu h-ionadail agus gu nàiseanta. Feumaidh iomradh a thoirt air £25,000 a thàinig bho mhuinnir na sgire. Thàinig iad gu iomadh tachartas is thug iad seachad tiodhlacan airgid gu fialaidh son a' phròiseact, agus phàigh ceud aca ceud not an duine airson dealbh teaghlaich agus an sloinneadh aca a chur air taidhle. Dh'obraich neach-ealain ionadail gu saor-thoileach air an obair seo. Tha an ceud taidhle seo a-nis ri fhaicinn aig prìomh dhoras Ghrinneabhat ag innse eachdraidh an àite nan dòigh fhèin tro dhealbhan agus aimmean dhaoine le buntanas don àite.

Thòisich an obair airson Grinneabhat ùrachadh ann an 2019 agus chaith a chriosnachadh aig àm glasaидh agus bacaidhean a' ghalair Covid-19. Thug seo droch bhuaidh oirnn cuideachd nuair a dh'fhosgail an togalach agus feum aig daoine fhàthast 'fad an sgadain a chumail bho chèile.

A dh'aindeoin seo rinn sinn a' chùis agus tha na leanas a-nis ri fhaighinn aig Grinneabhat – rùm coimhearsnachd, rùm taisbeanaidh, cafaidh, àite-fuirich agus nigheachan, le gàrradh brèagha a-muigh far am faod daoine lusan agus glasraich fhàs. Bidh luchd-tadhail ag innse dhuinn cho àlainn's a tha an togalach, oir rinn sinn cinnteach feartan na seann sgoilear a chumail. Aithnidh duine sam bith a bha na sgoilear an seo na rumannan clas far na shuidh iad nuair a bha iad òg.

Tha taobh ealain Ghrinneabhat glè chudromach dhuinn le rùm soilleir airson obair ealain a shealltainn, agus fàrdach far am faod ealaichean fuireach son greis. Tha e intinneach airson muinntir an àite cothrom conaltraidh fhaighinn le daoine cruthachail, agus tha

This was only step one of a long journey of many years of fund raising. Step two involved getting building project management advice from Tighean Innse Gall (TIG). TIG is Isle of Lewis based and provides project management services to the Local Housing Association and community bodies. With funding from the Big Lottery, architects White & McGinn and a Design Team were recruited and plans for the refurbishment of the old school drawn up.

This led to step three which involved raising the approximately £1.5 million required for the refurbishment work. A lot of money for a small community to raise. Our vision and determination were huge and thanks to bodies such as the National Lottery and the Robertson Trust, as well as public funding from various grant schemes run by national and local government, the target was eventually achieved. £25,000 was raised locally, much of it with the help of Bragar resident and artist Anne Campbell, who designed and made 100 tiles depicting people and families with Bragar connections, most showing their Gaelic patronymics, which are a huge talking point at the main entrance to Grinneabhat.

The refurbishment started in 2019 and was completed during the COVID-19 pandemic period. It was difficult to manage the work during a period of severe restrictions on people meeting together and this also affected our first year of opening.

Despite this Grinneabhat has now become an established venue providing a range of spaces – a community room, an exhibition room, a café, accommodation and a launderette, as well as gardens and growing plots. The refurbishment carefully preserved many of the features of the original 19th century Bragar School with visitors wowed by how beautiful the building is.

e inntinneach airson an luchd-ealain ùine a chur seachad agus obair ùr a chruthachadh ann an àite cho sònraichte ri Bràdhagair. Tha fios aig bailtean mòra cho riatanach 's a tha ealain-lann airson piseach eaconomaigeach a thoirt air sgìre: tha an aon rud fior ann an sgìrean dùthchail.

'S iomadh cèilidh air leth a th' air a bhith againn anns an rùm coimhearsnachd aig Grinneabhat. Tha sinn a' cèilidh le chèile ann gach seachdain, agus a' caithris na h-oidhche ann le seinneadairean Gàidhlig air leth, cluinnidh sinn clann bheaga a' cluich an seo, bidh clasaichean agus luchd-ciùird ann agus gu leòr de rudan eile.

'S e priomh àite cèilidh son daoine bho air feadh an eilein a th' anns a' chafaidh is cànan nan Gàidheal ga cluinniann ann fad an t-siubhail. Bidh luchd-tadhail bho gach ceàrnaidh a' tighinn chun àite fuirich againn, nam miosg luchd-ionnsachaидh na Gàidhlig agus sgoilearan bho thir-mòr na h-Alba a tha a' dèanamh Gàidhlig san sgoil agus a tha ag iarraidh bogadh ann an coimhearsnachd far a bheil a' Ghàidhlig fhathast làidir.

Tha Grinneabhat air togail mhòr a thoirt do thaobh siar Leòdhais. Tha daoine toilichte tadhal anns an togalach son iomadh adhbhar agus co-chomunn a bhith aca le chèile. Ged a tha e comasach an-diugh coinneachadh agus bruidhinn ri daoine bho taobh eile an t-saoghal ann am priobadh na sùla air an eadar-linn, agus beatha sòisealta a' leanntainn air na meadhanan sòisealta, tha e cudromach dhuinne gum bi sinn a' coinneachadh còmhla ann am fochair a chèile, mar a bha ar sinnsearan.

Tha mu dheichnear luchd-obrach aig Grinneabhat a bheir fàilte bhlàth dha cèilichean, agus tha diosfar dhaoine gu saor-thoileach a' cuideachadh le tachartasan agus clasaichean. Tha gach sgillinn a chosgas daoine aig Grinneabhat ga chosg leis an Urras air seirbheisean coimhearsnachd.

The exhibition space and accommodation for visiting artists is important for us. A programme of artists residencies instantly gives access to an international network of creative people. Being a place that creative people visit, work in, exhibit in and make work about, changes perceptions of place, both among local residents and the wider world. This is well recognised in urban areas where investment in the arts is known to make good economic sense, with people and businesses attracted to areas which are culturally vibrant. It is equally true of rural areas.

The community room has lived up to its name with all sorts of community events taking place there, from weekly coffee mornings to big Gaelic stars appearing to sing old and new Gaelic songs and entertain us in our own language.

The café is a key meeting point for people from all over Lewis, a place where Gaelic is spoken and encouraged. The accommodation is integral to many of the events and exhibitions we hold. As well as being available for all visitors, it allows Grinneabhat to be a resource for mainland Scotland based Gaelic medium schools, and Gaelic learners in general, to come to what is still a strong Gaelic community and hear the language spoken as a community language.

The Grinneabhat centre has resurrected the regular 'cèilidh', providing a place for people to meet and exchange news, as well as to socialise together. Face-to-face communication has always been highly valued in our culture, and although social media and the internet provide 24/7 communication, Grinneabhat provides the richness of human diversity which was enjoyed by previous generations.

Grinneabhat provides employment for ten local people and volunteers help out with events and activities. All money raised is reinvested in the community facilities.

Litir bhon Cheann-suidhe le Liam Ó Caiside

A chàirdean còire,

Letter from the President by Liam Cassidy

Dear friends,

Tha sinn a' tarraing dlùth ris an Nollaig a-rithist. Tha e direach às dèidh Latha na Taingealachd neo Fèill a' Bhuidheachais anns na Stàitean Aonaichte. Tha dòchas mòr agam gu bheil sibh uile slàn, sàbhailte, agus sona, saibhir no daibhir gun robh ur cor. Cha bu chòir dhomhsa gearan. Co-dhiù – cò dh'èisteadh rium? Tha mi an-dràsta aig taigh m' athar ann am Florida.

An robh sibh aig a' Mhòd againn aig toiseach na Samhna? Mar as àbhaist, bha e math dha-rireabh, ged nach tàinig sinn còmhla beò. 'S e mòd bhiortail a bh' ann, an ceathramh mòd bhiortail againn bho 2020. Feumaidh mi ràdh gun robh na mòdan bhiortail nas fheàrr ann an dùigh na iomadh mòd a bh' againn anns an t-seann aimsir. Thig barrachd thuca!

Bha seachd neach air fhichead againn am-bliadhna, agus dà fharpaiseach dheug. Agus b' e rud eile a bh' againn am-bliadhna ach dà chòisir a' seinn sa Ghàidhlig. Ciamar a rinn sinn sin air-loidhne? Bha dà fharpais – Òran Fhèin-Taic agus Seinn Còmhla – clàraichte ro làimh. Tha sinn gu math taingeil airson a' chuideachaидh a fhuair sinn bho ar britheamhan, Lyle agus Kerrie Ceanadach.

Agus abair gun robh deagh chèilidh againn an Disathairne ud. Thàinig aoighean sònraichte à Alba, pàistean agus inbhich, mar a leughadh sibh ann an àite eile san iris seo. 'S e fior "Trans-Atlantic Session" a bh' againn. Agus bha na bùthan-obrach glè inntinneach cuideachd, fear dhiubh mu dheidhinn òrain à Earrá-Ghàidheal agus fear eile mu chòisirean Gàidhlig.

Ged a tha ionndrainn orm airson nan làithean nuair a chruinnich sinn ri chèile airson a' Mhòid, tha mi uamhasach sàsaichte leis na mòdan bhiortail againn, a tha fàs nas mothà agus a' toirt buaidh air na h-òrain Ghàidhlig fad is farsaing ann an Aimearaga a Tuath. Bidh mòdan beò ann an Kentucky, Maryland, New York, Tennessee agus Carolina a Tuath a-rithist ann an 2024 cuideachd.

Tha sinn a' cur ri chèile smuaintean agus planaichean airson Oidhche nam Bàrd air an 27mh dhen Fhaoileach. 'S dòcha gum bi bùth-obrach againn air-loidhne (tro mheadhan Zoom) mu dheidhinn bàrdachd, le aoigh neo aoighean sònraichte. Cuiridh sinn fios thugaibh. Agus mas

Were you at our Mòd this year at the beginning of November? As usual, it was exceptionally good, although we didn't gather together "live." It was a virtual mod, our fourth virtual mod since 2020. I must say that the virtual mods are better in a way than many mods we held in the "old days." More people come!

We had 27 attendees this year, and 12 competitors. Something else we had this year – two choirs singing in Gaelic. How did we accomplish that online? Two competitions – Accompanied Song and Singing Together – were pre-recorded. We're really grateful for the help we received from our adjudicators, Lyle and Kerrie Kennedy.

And what a great ceilidh we had that Saturday. Special guests joined us from Scotland, children and adults, as you'll read elsewhere in this issue. It was a true "Trans-Atlantic Session." And the workshops were very interesting too, one about the songs of Argyll and the other about Gaelic choirs and choral singing.

Although I miss the days when we would gather together for the Mòd, I'm extremely satisfied with our virtual mods which are growing and spreading Gaelic song far and wide throughout North America. There will be "live" mods in Kentucky, New York City, North Carolina, Maryland and Tennessee next year, too.

We're thinking about and putting together plans for Oidhche nam Bàrd (the Night of the Gaelic Poets) on Jan. 27. It's likely we'll have an online workshop (through Zoom) about poetry, with a special guest or guests. We'll let you know. And math leibh dàin a leughadh neo a roinneadh cuide rinn, leigibh fios thugam!

Bidh Coinneamh Choitcheann Bhliadhnaile againn a-rithist mu dheireadh thall cuideachd, anns a' Ghearran. Gheibh sibh tuilleadh fiosrachaидh anns an iris seo – seallaibh air a' mhiosachan. Bidh sin na chothrom fior chudromach dhan a h-uile duine a bhios an sàs ann an ACGA am beachdan a thoirt dhan a' bhòrd. Tha mi an dòchas gum faic sinn sibh uile ann!

Tha mi taingeil airson iomadh rud am-bliadhna – mo shlàinte, mo theaghlaich, mo charaidean ... agus tha mi taingeil airson na taic a thug sibhse do dh'ACGA tron bhliadhna gu lèir. Cha b' urrainn dhuinn dad a dhèanamh mura biodh sibh an sàs ann an ACGA, ge b' e bheil sibh nur buill neo nur n-oifigearan. Ceud mìle taing dhuibh uile. Nollaig Chridheil agus Bliadhna' Ùr Mhath nuair a thig i!

We will have an Annual General Meeting again at long last too, in February. You'll get further information in this issue – check the calendar. That's an important opportunity for everyone involved in ACGA to give their opinions to the board. I hope we'll see you there!

I'm thankful for many things this year – my health, my family, my friends ... and I'm thankful for all the support you've given ACGA throughout the year. We couldn't do anything if you weren't part of ACGA, whether you're a member or an officer. A hundred thousand thanks to you all. Merry Christmas and a Good New Year!

Tha “Sgoil nan Eun” air tighinn gu crionnach ach tha Liam air sgeulachd ghoirid a thoirt dhuinn suidhichte air traidiseanan Ceap Breatainn.

Dh’innis caraid Albannach dhomh naidheachd gu math coltach ris an sgeul seo iomadh bliadhna air ais. Ghluais mi suidheachadh na sgeòil bho Alba gu Ceap Breatainn agus dh’atharraich mi an naidheachd, gu h-àraidh aig an deireadh. Ach bha na creideamhan ris an tachair sibh anns an naidheachd seo beò ann an Ceap Breatainn cho math ri Alba, agus tha iad ann fhathast.

– Liam Ó Caiside

A Scottish friend told me a story much like this tale many years ago. I moved the setting of the story from Scotland to Cape Breton, and changed the story, especially at the end. But, the beliefs you will encounter in this story were alive in Cape Breton as well as Scotland, and they are there yet.

Neòil-Shùla le Liam Ó Caiside

Gheibh sibh sìthichean ann an gàrradh mo mhàthar. No anns an tom air a chùlaibh. Chuala sibh gu ceart mi, sìthichean. Na daoine beaga.

Dh’ionnsaich mi sin nuair a bha mi air ais aig taigh mo mhàthar aon mhadainn Chèitein, mi fhìn nam shuidhe aig bòrd a’ chidsin ag òl cupa tì agus ise na seasamh a’ sgoladh nan soithichean anns a’ mhèis. ’S ann a’ coimhead a-mach tro uinneag a’ chidsin a bha i, coltas crosta oirre.

“Na gàrlaoich! Thàinig iad air ais a-rithist!” thuirt i gu h-obann is an guth aice làn dèineis. “Cò?” dh’fhaighnich mi dhi. Chuir mi mo chupan sios.

Tuigidh sibh nach robh nàbaidhean a’ fuireach faisg air a’ bhaile againn. Agus bha a’ chuid bu mhotha dhiubh sean, coltach ri mo mhàthair. Cha robh clann anns an nàbaidheachd nas mothà mar a bh’ ann nuair a bha mise òg. Thug an ginealach òg “a’ West” orra, mar a thug mise trithead bliadhna air ais.

“Na daoine ud, na daoine beaga!” ars ise. “Nochdaidh iad a h-uile latha, a’ coimhead thairis air an fheansa, neo a’ tighinn a-steach dhan ghàrradh. Bidh iad an còmhnaidh a’ goid rudeigin neo ri caochladh chleasan, na meabain!”

“Càit a bheil iad?” dh’fhaighnich mi, a’ coiseachd thar a’ chidsin agus a’ dol a sheasamh ri a taobh.

“A-mach a’ sin, ri taobh na feansa,” thuirt mo mhàthair. “Ach tha iad a’ falbh. ’S dòcha gum faca iad sinn anns an uinneig.”

Cha ruig mi a leas a bhith ’g innse dhuibh nach robh gin ann rim faicinn, beag neo mòr.

B’ e sin a’ chiad uair a chuala mi dad bho mo mhàthair mu na daoine beaga, ach cha b’ e sin an uair mu dheireadh. Bhruidhinn i mun dèidhinn gu tric.

Uair a bh’ ann, bha iad a’ cruinneachadh anns an t-seann t-sabhal, a rèir mo mhàthar. Cha robh sprèidh neo each againn bhon a chaochail m’ athair fichead bliadhna air ais.

“Dè ’n coltas a th’ orra?” dh’fhaighnich mi dhi. “An coltas àbhaisteach,” fhreagair mo mhàthair.

“Còtaichean gorma agus adaichean deurga air feadhainn dhiubh. Feusagan fada liath. Tha aodach gorma agus brèidean tartain air na mnathan, ge-tà. Tha iad bòidheach.”

Aon fheasgar, bha sinn a-muigh ri cùl an taighe, agus thuirt i rium gun robh na daoine beaga nan suidhe aig bun craoibhe air taobh eile a’ ghàrraidh. Choisich mi dhan chraoibh agus dh’fhaighnich mi dhi, “Càit a bheil iad a-nise? A bheil iad fhathast ann a’ seo?”

“Chan eil, chan eil,” thuirt mo mhàthair. “Theich iad uile nuair a theannaich thu ach tha duine a-mhàin na sheasamh fhathast. Chan eil eagal air romhad!”

Chaidh mise air ais a-staigh.

Uair eile, bha na daoine beaga a’ buaireadh a’ chait a dhol dhachaigh còmhla riuthasan fon tom, ars ise. “Tha iad làn dhen donas, ged bha iad aosta,” thuirt mo mhàthair.

’S e mo mhàthair a bha a’ fàs aosta, agus chuir sin dragh agus iomagain orm. Bha i gu bhith ochdad bliadhna dh’aois, a’ fuireach leatha fhèin ann an seann taigh ann an Ceap Breatainn.

Bha mi fhìn – an aon nighean aice – ann an Toronto bhon a chaidh mi gu oilthigh. Phòs mi ann a’ sin agus tha dithist nighean againn, is iad air cinntinn suas a-nise agus ag obair anns a’ bhaile-mhòr.

Gu fortanach, bha mo bhràthair Aonghas a’ fuireach ann am Baile nan Loch, àite air an tug iad Dartmouth sa Bheurla. Bha na braithrean eile agam ann an Dùn ’ic Mhurchaidh agus Bhancùbhair. Cha bhitheamaid a’ cluinniunn bhuapa gu tric, ach thigeadh Aonghas dhachaigh bho àm gu àm agus chùm e sùil air ar màthair. ’S e dotair a th’ ann.

Bha mi caran màirnealach falal a ràdh ri duine sam bith mu dhèidhinn na bha mo mhàthair ag ràdh. Dè shaoileadh iad? An cuireadh iad an t-seann bhoireannach a-mach às a dachaigh gu taigh-cùraim?

Cuimhnichibh gun robh mo mhàthair ’s a teaghlach air a bhith a’ fuireach sa bhaile againn cha mhòr dà cheud bliadhna. Nuair a dh’eug a h-athair anns an Dàrna Chogadh Mhòr, agus a chaochail a màthair, chaidh mo mhàthair a thogail le a sean-phàrantan agus a h-uncailean. ’S e sin an t-adhbhar gu robh i làn-Ghàidhlig. Bhruiddhinn mo shin-sheana phàrantan agus an teaghlach uile gu lèir Gàidhlig an uair sin. ’S truagh nach eil mòran agam fhìn.

Bha bailtean-fearainn aig a h-uncailean faisg air a’ bhaile againn fhìn. Nuair a phòs mo mhàthair, thàinig m’ athair air ais dhan bhaile còmhla rithe agus shuidhich iad anns an t-seann taigh còmhla ri a seann-phàrantan. Nuair a chaochail iad, ’s ann aca a bha an seann bhaile-fearainn.

Bha deasbad eadar mi fhìn agus Aonghas air an fhòn. Dè bu chòir dhuinn a dhèanamh air a son? Dh’ innis mi dha dè bha i ag ràdh mu na sìthichean.

“A bheil i air rudan eile fhaicinn, rudan nach robh ann?” dh’fhaighnich e dhomh. Cha robh idir. Bha a h-inntinn cho geur ’s a bha i riamh – a-mach o na sìthichean.

Thuirt e rium, “A bheil cuimhne agad air nuair a bha sinn òg ...”

O, tha cuimhne agam air. Ged nach tuirt mo mhàthair no m’ athair mòran mu na sìthichean nuair a bha sinn nar pàisteann, bha a h-uncailean beò fhathast, agus is ann aca a bha na naidheachdan.

“Dè a’ Ghàidhlig a thug iad air a’ chnoc bheag air cùl an taighe?” dh’fhaighnich Aonghas. “Tom an t-sithein.” Abair fhèin e! Dhìochuimhnich mi sin. ’S ann an sin a tha na daoine beaga a’ fuireach, a rèir mo mhàthar.

“Agus a bheil cuimhne agad air dè bha Aonghas Ruairidh (bràthair-athar mo mhàthar) ag ràdh nuair a dhòirt e rudeigin mar uisge air an talamh nuair a bha sinn a-muigh? ‘Uisge gan ionnsaigh’ tha mi creidsinn. ’S e seòrsa de rabhadh a bh’ ann gu bheil uisge a’ tighinn. Agus cò iad a bha a-muigh far an do dhòirt e an t-uisge ach na sìthichean?”

Cha robh fhios agam air a’ sin. Ach chuimhnich mi air rud eile.

“An do dh’innis Dòmhnull Ruairidh (seann-uncail eile) an rud seo dhut mu dhèidhinn nan each? Mar a chuir na sìtheanaich am muingeann ann am figheachain bheaga, nuair a bha iad san stàball rè na h-oidhche?”

“Dh’innis,” thuirt e. “Agus bha Dòmhnull gu math crosta nuair a rinn mi gàire. Bha e ann an dà-rìreabh. Agus thuirt Iain Ruadh” – ar seann-uncail as òige – “thuirt e rium uair, ‘chan eil mi a’ creidsinn anns na sìthichean, ach tha iad ann, ge-tà!’”

Mhathaich mi an uair sin gu robh creideamh anns na sìthichean gu math làidir aig an t-seann ghinealach sin, agus mhair an creideamh sin cho fada ’s a bha iad a’ fuireach anns na bailtean-fearainn aca agus a’ bruidhinn Gàidhlig ri chèile gu bitheanta.

Nuair a fhuair Beurla làmh an uachdair, dh’fhalbh na sgeulachdan agus na sìthichean. Nuair a dh’fhalbh na daoine òga, dh’fhalbh na daoine beaga cuideachd. Rinn sinn dearmad orra.

Ach ann an inntinn mo mhàthar-sa, bha iad air ais.

“Cuimhnich, nuair a bha ar màthair na nighneig, bha ’n cànan agus na naidheachdan seo na cluasan fad an t-siubhail,” thuirt Aonghas rium. “Cha mhòr an t-iognadh gun tigeadh iad air ais thuice nuair a tha i air fàs sean.”

Ach an e seargadh-inntinn neo Alzheimer's as coireach? B' e sin an t-eagal a bu mhiosa.

“Thèid co-obraiche agam san ospadal suas gu Mabù an t-seachdain sa tighinn,” thuirt Aonghas. “Dh’iarr mi oirre stad aig an taigh nuair a bhios i air an t-slighe agus bruidhnidh i riut agus ri ar màthair. Tha fhios agam nach bu thoil leatha a dhol dhan dotair.”

Bha sin math. Eadar an dà àm, chaidh mise agus mo mhàthair air tursan beaga mun cuairt an eilein. Latha a bha seo nuair a bha sinn a’ dràibheadh dhachaigh bho Inverness, dh’fhaighnich mi dhi an robh i a’ faicinn shìthichean ann an Inverness agus ann an àiteachan eile, a-mach on bhaile againn?

“O tha,” thuirt i le iognadh. “Gheibh thu iad ann an iomadh àite. Nach eil fhios agad gur e ‘an Sithean’ a th’ aca air Inverness anns a’ Ghàidhlig?”

O mo chreach. Bha cùisean na bu mhiosa na bha mi an dùil.

“Ach carson a tha thu faicinn shìthichean agus daoine beaga a-niste?” dh’fhaighnich mi dhi. “Cha tuirt thu rud sam bith mun dèidhinn nuair a bha thu na b’ òige.”

“Uill, chan eil fhios agam le cinnt,” fhreagair ise. “Ach nuair a bha mi nam chaileig, thàinig seann-bhoireannach dhan doras, cailleach bheag chrùbach, ag iarraidh rudeigin – pait ime neo càise ’s dòcha. Cha do dh’ainnich mi i, ach thug mi an t-im dhi mar bu chòir.

“Chuir i a meuran an comhair mo shùilean agus thuirt i, ‘Gaol a bhith nad aodann, lèirs’ a bhith nad shùilean,’ agus dh’halbh i. Dhiochuimhnich mi sin fad iomadh bliadhna, ach tha mi creidsinn gur e ban-shìth a bh’ innte, agus gun tug i dhomh an deagh-lèirsinn a tha agam fhathast.”

Chuir seo iognadh mòr orm. Cha chuala mi a leithid riamh. Deagh-lèirsinn?

Ach thàinig an latha agus thàinig an dotair, boireannach òg. Bha i aoibheil agus modhail, agus thòisich ise agus mo mhàthair a’ cabadaich mar charaidean ann an ùine nach robh fada. Chaidh mise a-mach.

Às dèidh uair, thàinig an dotair thugam. “Chan eil sòn ceàrr air inntinn ur màthar, ach tha neòil-shùla aice,” thuirt i rium. “Dè?” thuirt mi.

“Cataracts,” ars ise. “S e sin an t-adhbhar gu bheil i faicinn rudan nach eil ann. Bheir na cataracts buaidh air a lèirsinn. Agus bheir a h-eanchainn eadar-mhìneachadh air na tha i faicinn. Agus curridh a h-eanchainn na tha i faicinn ann an cruth a bhiodh i a’ tuigsinn – na daoine beaga, bho na stòraidhean a chuala i nuair a bha i òg.”

A shìorraidh mhathasaich, chuir sin mòr-iognadh agus faochadh orm! “Dè bu chòir dhuinn a dhèanamh?” dh’fhaighnich mi dhan dotair.

“S e mo bharail gum bu chòir dhi a dhol fon lannsa anns an ospadal. B’ urrainn dhaibh na neòil-shùla a thogail àiste. Bhiodh i ceart gu leòr às dèidh sin, agus a lèirsinn fada na b’ fheàrr.”

Taing dhan t-Sealbh! Thug mi mìle taing dhi agus dh’halbh i air a turas. Thuirt mo mhàthair gun tèid i dha na dotairean ann am Baile Shidni, agus thèid mise còmhla rithe nuair a bhios iad deiseil air a son. Agus tha mi cinnteach, cha chluinn sinn an corr mu na daoine beaga às dèidh sin!

Air taobh eile na feansa, bha na daoine beaga a’ coimhead air an dotair òg agus ise a’ dràibheadh air falbh. “Saoilibh an dèan i aon mhath dhi?” arsa duine dhiubh.

“Tha eagal orm nach dèan,” thuirt a charaid, fear le feusag bhachlagach fhada. “Cha chuirinn mòran earbs’ anns na dotairean.”

Litir à Dùn Èideann

by Jeff W. Justice

A chàirdean,

“Guys, sometimes, life just is not fair.”

I played ball-coise when I was younger. I wasn’t very good at it, but I did play on a city championship team one season. We had but one loss in the regular season, and that quote was the first thing Coach said to us as we gathered, dejected, after the final whistle blew. We had just been beaten by a team that, in reality, was really just one player. That player was Mia Hamm, and she went on to win Olympic gold medals and the Women’s World Cup with the US Women’s National Team.

I’ve been reminded of that in the past month. I’ve been sitting at home, as COVID finally caught up with me. I’ve had every vaccine on offer. I wear masks, despite my state’s governor opposing them in public facilities. I keep hand sanitizer in my backpack, and I use it. None of those precautions were guarantees, so here I sit and write between waves of fogginess.

I got an email last week from another Celtic studies organization informing me that the University of Toronto is considering replacing its Celtic Studies program with an “Irish and British Studies” program that will not have a mandatory Celtic language requirement. I had hoped that, during moments of clarity, that email was something that I’d imagined.

No, it was not. I’ve received multiple messages and emails since, asking me to submit my own comments opposing this effort.

Those messages were demoralizing enough. Then I received multiple messages alerting me to a proposal on the other side of the Atlantic that the University of Aberdeen is considering, which will see it eliminate research in several languages. This proposal includes Gaelic. The Scotland-based Royal Celtic Society sent out an emergency petition to its membership, asking it to register its objections to this move. A member of the RCS Council pointed to the fact that Aberdeen’s university library contains a wealth of Gaelic material, which should make such a move unthinkable.

Ironically, these universities’ actions are taking place as the Scottish Parliament is now moving forward with legislation to give official status to Gaelic (and Scots) in law, and the UK Parliament is simultaneously moving forward with a bill that will improve Gaelic and Welsh broadcasting and make both easier to access worldwide.

OK, not everything went wrong in November. However, let there be no mistake that education is a significantly important component in perpetuating any language. Lack of teaching support and usage of a language in public education institutions is a serious threat in and of itself, but our institutions of higher education abandoning them, treating them as afterthoughts, should raise very significant alarm bells. If these bastions of human knowledge, of truth, are going to abandon these languages – whatever the reason might be – then who will step up to fill the void? Who could?

By the time this “Litir” goes to press, decisions might already have been made. If not, make your voice heard. If so, make your voice heard, as decisions can be reversed. Either way, An Comunn Gàidhealach Ameireaganach and our fellow Celtic organizations about the globe are now on warning. We need to be vigilant and proactive in preventing any academic ambivalence toward our languages, toward who we are and who we choose to be. I invite us to have this conversation urgently.

Now, back to convalescence and some cofaidh teth.

Le meas,

Gairidh / Jeff

Book Review:
Cridhe's Anam / Heart & Soul
le Catriona Parsons
Bradan Press, 2023, 110 pages
ISBN: 978-1-77861-021-9

Lèirmheas le Àdhamh Dàmaireach

Tha mi dìreach às dèidh crìoch a chur air Cridhe's Anam, duanaire a sgrìobh Catriona Niclòmhair Parsons – sgrìobhadair, òraídiche agus tidsear gu math ainmeil ann an Saoghal na Gàidhlig, aig a bheil luchd-leughaidh, luchd-èisteachd, agus oilleanaich air trì mòr-thìrean. Tha iomhaigh eachdraidh an ùghdair ri fhaicinn gu soilleir ann am bàrdachd an leabhair seo, leis na pìosan air an òrdachadh a rèir an àite mu bheil iad air an sgrìobhadh, air neo far an robh am bàrd a' fuireach nuair a sgrìobh i iad.

Tòisichidh Parsons an co-chruinneachadh le dàin do dh'Eilean Leòdhais, far an do rugadh i. Chòrd na pìosan sin gu mòr rium, air iomadh adhbhar. 'S a' phriomh àite, tha iad stèidhichte ann an òige an ùghdair, agus, ged as ann an Leòdhas a tha na freumhan aca, tha iad làn fhaireachdainean a nochdadh ann an òige sam bith: an toileachas a dh'fhairicheas pàiste beag nuair a thèid e mun cuairt sgìre a choimhearsnachd le a phàrantan; am blàths a thig oirnn nuair a chuimhnicheas sinn gaol fhathast maireannach a thòisich nuair a bha sinn òg; an cianalas a th' aig gach uile clann, airson nan dùthchannan san do thogadh iad, ach nach mothaich iad a-chaoiadh ann an da-rìribh gus am falbh iad airson tìrean fada thall.

Agus sin a rinn Parsons fhèin, gu dearbh: thug i a casan leatha, mar gum biodh, agus rinn i càrsa air àiteachan gu math eadar-dhealaichte on eilean aice fhèin. Ach, mar a sheallas a cuid bàrdachd, ged a dh'fhàg i an dùthaiach aice, cha do chuir i a cùl ri a dùthchas. Fiù 's am feadh 's a tha i a' toirt an leughadair tron iomadh siubhal aice mun cuairt an t-saoghail, o Alba Nuadh gu Sealann Nuadh, bidh dualchainnt Leòdhais a' sradachadh am measg nam faclan mar bhleideagan òir am measg bhraoileagan aig iochdair uillt, agus tha a fèin-aithne – mar Leòdhasach, mar neach-labhairt na Gàidhlig, is mar Ghàidheal – follaiseach gu moiteil air feadh an leabhair. 'S dòcha gun robh dileasachd a' bhàird do mhuinnitir nan Gàidheal as soilleire ri fhaicinn anns an duan as fheàrr leam sa cho-chruinneachadh, pìos air an robh an tiotal 'Urram':

Seasaidh Leòdas – agus na Leòdhasaich
 Seasaidh na Hearadh – agus na Hearaich
 Seasaidh Sgitheanaich, Eigich, Abraich –
 Seasaidh na Gàidheil – ge bi far am bi iad

Òir thug iad leotha an cànan is ceòl; thug iad leotha
 An creideamh; agus an aghaidh saoghal chruaidh, chunnartaich, Sheas iad; tha iad 'nan seasamh fhathast; agus far am bi iad
 Seasaidh i gu stolda, slàn an aghaidh na Siorraidheachd

Is faclan math fhèin iad, a Chàtriona! Tha mi an dòchas gun leugh an saoghal iad, is gum bi an sluagh gan cuimhneachadh 's gan creidsinn. Tha mi cinnteach gun nochd am mac-talla nam chuimhne sna bliadhnaichean ri teachd nuair a smaoinicheas mi air maireannachd nam muinntir tùsanach – is na Gàidheil nam measg – an aghaidh colonachd.

In this article originally published in An Naidhachd Againne, March, 2012, Catriona Parsons, whose poetry collection, Cridhe's Anam / Heart and Soul, is reviewed on page 15, tells us a little about growing up on Lewis, and how the people of Point saved the rest of the island from drifting off into the sea!

Dh'íarr sinn air Catriona Parsons sgriobhadh a bheireadh dhuinn iomradh is beagan tuigse air àite a breith. Tha i air aiste gu math tarraingeach is pearsanta a dhealbhachadh, a tha a' toirt dhuinn sealladh air an Rudha agus a togail an siud. Tha Catriona aithnichte mar-thà do dh'iomadh ball ACGA mar thidsear, charaid agus shàr neach-taice don Ghàidhlig.

We asked Catriona Parsons to tell us about the place she was born. She has given us an appealing and personal picture of Point (Lewis) and her early years there. Catriona is already known to many ACGA members as teacher, friend, and supporter of Gaelic.

Mo Chuimhne air Leódhais

le Catriona Niclomhair Parsons

Rugadh mi ann a' baile beag air taobh an ear Leódhais. 'S e Aignis ainnm a' bhaile bhig seo, "Aignis air a' mhachair" mar a chanas an t-òran. Tha Aignis 'na laighe ann a' sgìre an Rudha, agus chan eil eadar an Rudha agus an còrr dhen eilean ach aoidh chumhang ris an canar Am Bràighe. Air aon taobh rathad na h-Aoidhe, tha cladach is gainmheach is machair; air an taobh eile, cladach. Agus air taobh na machrach, tha seann chladh far a bheil mo shinnseirean air an tiodhlaceaadh. Ri taobh a' chladh seo, tha seann eaglais – no làrach de dh' eaglais – a tha air a h-ainmeachadh do Cholum Cille. 'S coltach gun deach an eaglais a thogail anns na meadhon aoisean, ach b' ann air làrach cill an Naoimh Chatain a chaidh a togail. Bha Catan beò aig àm Choluim Chille 's an t-siathamh linn. Co dhiùbh, tha naoiadh deug de chinn-chinnidh Clann MhicLeòid adhlaichte anns an eaglais seo. 'S e NicLeòid a bha 'nam mhàthair 's mar sin, tha ùidh agam anns a' chinneadh aice.

A-nis bho chionn fhad an t-saoghail, cha robh an Rudha idir ceangailte ri Leódhais. Aon oidhche dhorcha geomhraidh, thàinig stoirm a bha gàbhaidh le tuinn mhór uamhasach a bhrùth 's a phronn taobh an iar na h-Alba. Fhad 's a bha na tuinn eagalach seo a' cnacadh 's a' bualadh, thachair gun do thòisich Eilean Leódhais falbh leis a' ghaoith anns a' chuan shiar. Thug muinntir a' Rudha aire dhan a' seo agus chaidh iad an aghaidh na stoirm agus

Taobh eile a' Bhràighe / The far side of the Bràighe

I was born in a village on the east side of the Isle of Lewis, by the name of Aignish – "Aignish on the machair", as the song goes. Aignish lies in the district of Point which is tied to the rest of the island by a narrow isthmus called the "Bràighe". On one side of the isthmus road are shore and sand and machair; on the other side, shore. On the machair side is an old graveyard where my ancestors are buried and beside it, an old church – or church ruin – named for St. Columba. It seems the church was built in the middle ages on the foundation of a chapel dedicated to St. Catan who was alive in the time of St. Columba in the 6th century. In any case, 19 chiefs of Clan MacLeod are buried in this church; my mother was a MacLeod and naturally I'm interested in her lineage.

Sealladh air pàirt de dh'Aignis / Aignish, Lewis

Catriona Parsons

Now long, long ago Point wasn't attached to Lewis at all. One dark winter's night, a fearful storm came with tremendous waves that pounded and battered the west of Scotland. While these fearful waves were crashing and threshing, the Isle of Lewis began to go off with the wind into the Atlantic Ocean. The thilg iad ròp tarsainn dhan eilean gus nach flodadh e air falbh. Rè ùine, thuinich feamainn, barraig-uaine (no algae) agus gainmheach air a' ròp; chnapaich seo beag air bheag gus a' robh aoidh mu dheireadh eadar an Rudha agus Eilean Leódhais. Mar sin, tha muinntir Leódhais fada an comain muinntir a' Rudha airson an sàbhaladh. Sin an sgeul co dhiùbh's ma 's e breug bhuan i, b' e breug thugam i!

Nuair a dh'fhàs mi suas ann a' Leódhais aig àm an darna chogaidh agus anns na bliadhnaichean ás a dhéidh, cha robh guth aig duine gu robh a' Ghàidhlig ann a' cunnart. Gu deimhinne, b' ann 's a' Bheurla a fhuair sinn oideachd 's an sgoil ach bha a' Ghàidhlig ri 'cluinntinn anns na dachaidhean agus air na sràidean; agus bha cothroman anns na bun-sgoiltean 's na h-àrd-sgoiltean òrain Ghàidhlig 'ionnsachadh is clasaichean Gàidhlig a ghabhail. B' ann am Bun-sgoil Shandabhaig aig aois ochd bliadhna a dh' ionnsaich mi an t-òran a bhuanach darna duais dhomh aig Mòd Leódhais, a' chiad mhòd 's an robh mi a-riamh! Roimh m' linn, chuir An Comunn Gàidhealach gnàthasan-cainnt is abairtean a chruinnich maighstir-sgoile Shandabhaig, Donnchadh MacDhòmhnaill, an clò. (Gaelic Idioms and Expressions, with free translations, 1932). Tha iad fhathast anabarrach feumail. Gu mi-fhortanach, bidh Bun-sgoil Shandabhaig a' dùnadh am bliadhna air sgàth gainnead nan sgoilearan.

Tha mi a' cumail a-mach gur e buaidh mo sheanar 's mo sheanmhar, pàrantan m' athar, ann an Aignis as coireach gu bheil a' Ghàidhlig agam fhìn an diugh. Cha robh ach facal no dhà dhen Bheurla aig mo sheanmhair; mar sin, cha do bhruidhinn mi ach a' Ghàidhlig nuair a bha mi còmhla riutha, fad iomadh ceann-seachdain is samhraidh. Bhithinn a' cuideachadh mo sheanar leis an obair a-muigh (ma 's fhior!) Bliadhnaichean ás déidh dhaibh caochladh, aon là breagh samhraidh 's mi a' coiseachd na slighe suas gu Dùn Louisbourg ann a' Ceap Breatainn, a' mhuiir air aon taobh agus boltrach sheamragan a' tighinn gu mo shròn bho raon air an taobh eile, thàinig mo sheanair a-staigh orm cho soilleir agus rinn mi na loidhnichean a leanas:

Eaglais na h-Aoidhe / St. Columba's Church (ruin) and graveyard, Aignis people of Point noticed this and, going against the wind, threw a rope across to the island so that it wouldn't float away. Through time, seaweed, algae and sand settled on the rope; little by little, this accumulated until finally there was an isthmus between Point and the Isle of Lewis. For that reason, the people of Lewis are much indebted to the people of Point for saving them. That's the story anyway – and if it's not true, that's how I heard it!

At the time I grew up in Lewis after the Second World War, no one spoke of Gaelic's being in danger. True, it was in English we received our school education but Gaelic could be heard in homes and on the streets; and opportunities existed in elementary and high schools to learn Gaelic songs and access Gaelic classes. It was in Sandwickhill School that I learned at age 8 the song that won 2nd prize for me at the Lewis Mòd, the first mod I ever attended! Before my time, the Highland Society published a book by Duncan MacDonald, then Headmaster of Sandwickhill School, entitled Gaelic Idioms and Expressions, with free translations, in 1932. These are still extremely useful. Unfortunately, this same school is due for closure this year due to shortage of students.

That I have the Gaelic today is due, I'm sure, to the influence of my father's parents in Aignish. My grandmother had only a couple of words of English and so I spoke only Gaelic with her and my grandfather all the weekends and summers I spent with them. I used to help my grandfather with the outside work (make-believe, on my part!). Years after their death, one lovely summer's day as I was walking on the path up towards Fortress Louisbourg in Cape Breton, the sea on one side and the scent of clover palpable from a field on the other side, my grandfather came strongly to mind and I put the following lines together:

*Taobh a-staigh Eaglais na h-Aoidhe / Church ruin detail, Aignish
Catriona Parsons*

Cuimhne

'Nam shuidh' am bucas cairt mo sheanar
'S mi beag biodach, air mo bhrùthadh a-null 's a-nall
'S na rothan a' leum air clachan a' rathaid
'S an làir a' toirt céim gu trom's gu mall.

Bha an dithis againn – mi-fhìn 's e-fhéin (Mise faireachdain cho mó!) – 'dol an tòir air gainmhich bho'n tràigh.
Os ar cionn adhar breac gorm 's a' cionacrachadh ar
sròintean
Fáileadh cùbhraidh na seamraig bhàin.

Mi coiseachd eadar muir is achadh
Air mó-thir eile, 's gaoth bhlàth na mara
A' gluasad tarsainn air a' raon, geal le seamragan
'S a' toirt mo sheanar – glan, geur, gràdhaithe – gu m' aire.

(an clò ann a' GAIRM, An Dùdlachd, 1990)

Remembrance

There was I, tiny wee, sitting in my grandfather's cart
Jostled back and forth
As the wheels leapt upon the stones of the road
And the mare plodded, heavy and slow.

The two of us – myself (feeling so big!) and himself –
Going to fetch sand from the sea-shore.
Above us, a speckled blue sky and, caressing our noses,
The sweet fragrance of the white clover.

Walking between sea and plain on another continent
With the warm sea-wind moving across the field
White with clover, bringing my grandfather –
Bright, sharp, beloved – to my attention.

Bilingual Recipe

The first known recipe for tablet was recorded in Scotland in the early 18th century, and this sweet, fudge-like treat has remained popular in Scotland ever since. Sonja and Phil at Scottish Scran (<https://scottishscran.com/>) have generously allowed us to print their recipe here, along with our Gaelic translation. The aim of their website is to explore traditional and modern Scottish recipes that the home cook can recreate. Although there are only a few ingredients, tablet, like any homemade candy, can be a bit challenging to make, but Sonja and Phil provide a step-by-step method with extensive tips to make sure that your tablet is delicious. <https://scottishscran.com/traditional-scottish-tablet-recipe/>

Scottish Tablet

Ingredients*

4.5 cups (2 lb) granulated or castor sugar
1 cup of full-fat milk
1 tin (14 oz) of sweetened condensed milk
6 tbsp butter

* for metric measurements see the link above

Method

In a large saucepan on the stovetop, slowly dissolve the sugar, full-fat milk and butter, stirring with a wooden spoon, until the mixture is smooth. You can use a microwave oven for this step, heating 90 seconds at a time on a low or defrost setting.

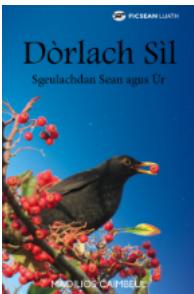

Add the condensed milk and bring the mixture to a boil, stirring continuously to prevent scorching (you must use the stove for this step).

Briskly simmer for about 20 minutes until the mixture darkens to a caramel colour, stirring continuously.

Take the pot off the heat and quickly beat the mixture by hand or with an electric mixer and then pour into a buttered 12 x 9 inch baking tray. It will start to thicken as you pour.

Let sit 20 minutes and then score the top for easier cutting later. Let sit for 2 to 3 hours before serving, or overnight.

There are 21 stories in this anthology, too many to cover each one, even briefly. I had read several stories before, and one, “An Clageann aig Damien Hirst” (The Skull of Damien Hirst*), made such an impact on readers that an entire earlier short-story compilation was named after it. It’s a tale of a haunted skull persecuting a man with too much money and too little taste. For a different satire of wealth I recommend Borisina (Borisina), although you will need some basic knowledge about the British political scene. While I am at it I will spoil several stories and tell you that if a character is driving an expensive car, that foretells difficulties ahead. For more spookiness try “Caol-thèarnadh” (Narrow Escape). It features unearthly creepiness and a Mercedes. If you prefer terrestrial terror try “Ri Aghaidh na Creig” (Against the Precipice, or Cliffhanger) which has a BMW in it – uh-oh. The story “An Clisgeadh” (Shock) is full of omens and portents, but since it has no expensive cars maybe things won’t be so bad.

The worst horrors really happened. “Leig Leatha Losgadh” (Let Her Burn) is a simple and barely fictional narrative of the expulsions of the Gaels in the 19th century featuring the very real, very evil Pàdraig Sellar. “Baile Sgàil a’ Bhàis” (Town of the Shadow of Death) describes the home-front ravages of the First World War culminating in the Iolaire disaster. Haunted skulls are cotton candy by comparison. “Mar a Bhruidhneas Cuimhne” (As Memory Speaks) describes a Gaelic village dying slowly from monolingual in-comers, but it features a moderately wealthy man who does something constructive, which is not something that rich men do in most of these stories.

The comical “An Tidsear agus na Fiaclan Fuadain” (The Teacher and the False Teeth) shows that it is not easy for a toothless teacher to face a class of rowdy tooth-privileged boys. In “Am Feòil-Sheachnair” (The Vegetarian) it is not easy being parents of a teenager who has been converted to vegetarianism by the Nuts and Greens society. This leads to my personal favorite “Màireag ’s an Coileach-Frangach” (Little Mary and the Turkey) which describes the fate of Calum, a charismatic turkey who has gobs of charm and is pre-destined for a starring role at Christmas dinner.

I did not understand the deeper point of “An Naidheachd bho Mhàrs” (The News from Mars) and I need to read it again. “An Doras Seunmhor” (The Enchanted Door) is a religious story with a Gaelic flavor – the title character is Jesus.

The most challenging story is “Aileas” (Alice? Pleasant country?). It is written in a stream-of-consciousness style but is also disconcerting. I will give you a hint by referring you to the poems “The Blessed Damozel” by Dante Gabriel Rossetti and “The Raven” by Edgar Allan Poe.

This doesn’t exhaust all the stories in the anthology, but the remainder describe moral challenges, growing up, and self-understanding.

I did not have to resort to the dictionary often and the stories do not have lots of compound sentences. The stories range from about six to ten pages and the typeface is easy to read and without the pixelation of some other books I have reviewed. If there are typos I did not see them. The paper is good quality and the paperback book has a surprisingly strong spine. It is available as an e-book as well.

Facal à Aonghas / A Word From Angus

Have you ever wondered how to say a particular word or phrase in good idiomatic Gaelic? Want to expand your vocabulary? Then you might find these examples helpful.

Angus MacLeod, Gaelic teacher and author from Cape Breton, often answers these kinds of questions in his classes, sometimes with a Cape Breton blas. His graphic novels¹ also provide many useful phrases in idiomatic Gaelic.

In English, “’til the cows come home”, is an expression that indicates a period of time that is both long and indefinite, as in “You can argue with him ’til the cows come home but he won’t change his mind.”

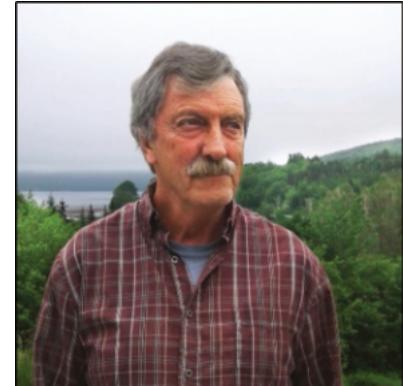

But in Gaelic we would say:

Faodaidh tu trod ris gu Latha Luain ach cha toir thu às a bheachd.

You can argue with him until Doomsday but you won’t change his opinion.

- gu Latha Luain / Là Luain – until Doomsday, until the end of time, forever, ’til Hell freezes over

- cha toir thu às a bheachd – you won’t dissuade him from his opinion

Other phrases that indicate a long period of time are:

Chaidh an sgeulachd seo innse cho fada ri freastal.

The story has been told for as long as time itself.

- cho fada ri freasdal / freastal – as long as time itself

- freastal (masc.) – fate

Cha tig e gu ceann fada.

He will not come for a long while.

- gu ceann fada – for a long while / time

Cha chuala mi bhuaithe fad ùine mhòr.

I haven’t heard from her in a long time.

- fad ùine mhòr – for a long time

- fad (masc.) – duration

Bàrdachd airson ar linn

We love it when Gaelic learners turn into Gaelic poets! “Bàrdachd airson ar linn” is an ongoing column to encourage and promote original contemporary Scottish Gaelic poetry. Poets may range from fluent and native speakers to adult learners.

ACGA member Micheal Mac an t-Saoir / Michael McIntyre is the recipient of the Duais Iain Mhic Mhurchaidh / John MacRae Award for best original poem at this year’s US National Mòd for his poem, Luideag chleachdte. He describes it as a poem from a sreath de dhuanagan – a sonnet sequence: Litreachan na Bana-Bheachlannair – Letters of a Bee-keeper – in which the letter writer composes a series of letters to a man with whom she had an unhappy, passionate affair some years before.

Luideag chleachdte

le Micheal Mac an t-Saoir

Luideag chleachdte air a thilg fon t-since;
stocainn ribeach anns an do chuir thu do chas
shalach; attach bhrògan a chaill beagan maith a bha aca latha;

sgudal air a chur air cùl anns a’ bhiona;
no piseag bhriste, a cnàmhan brùillte
’s brùite ri taobh an rathaid ann an dìg:
ní gun fhiù, gun fheum, gun luach;

Mar gun loisgeadh às a cruth mo ghnùis, chan fhulainginn a bhith air m’ fhaicinn.
Cha robh leisgeul agam a mhairsinn ... Thalla ’s tùdan!
Tuilleadh ’s cus! ’S ann orm fhìn a feumaidh mi gaire.

Chuirinn curridhean a-mach. Chuireadh an sealladh mòr-ionganadh air an t-saoghal:
“Thigibh! Faicibh an òinseach! Chreid i gu dearbh gur ann aige oirre a bha gaoil!”

Michael has also adopted rhymes from Mother Goose.

An t-àite agam fhìn

“An t-àite agam fhìn” is where you will find short pieces by ACGA members and friends about their families, their homes, and their world. In this issue, Cam MacRae tells us about the knitting group’s foray into Shetland lace, and she includes a link to a free pattern that you can use to knit small lacy “Holiday Frost Snowflakes.” Also in the issue, we welcome Ted Neveln, who, inspired by a phrase he saw in the LearnGaelic dictionary, explains why he needs to learn Gaelic. We couldn’t find a photo of seagulls swarming, so you’ll just have to imagine that part. And if you think you recognize Ted’s name, it’s because he writes our book reviews.

If you would like to try your hand at a short anecdotal piece in Gaelic about the place where you live or the people in it, we’d love to publish it in “An t-àite agam fhìn.” Don’t worry about making your Gaelic perfect. We’ll help you with the editing process.

A’ fighe aig astar

le Cam MacRae

Mar as trice, nuair a bhios mi a’ fighe, bidh mi a’ dèanamh rudeigin a chumas mi fhin, no duine eile, blàth: geansaighd, ad, stocainnean, miotagan, no a leithid. Mar eisimpleir, an-uiridh, rinn am buidheann fighe againn beannagan Sealtainneach, neo haps, agus nach sinn uile a bha cofhurtail sa gheamhradh.

Aig an àm sin, bha sinn mothachail air seòrsa de bheannag eile a tha ainmeal ann an Sealtainn: beannag air a fighe le pàtrian lèis, beannag le lùban beaga biodach agus paitl, beannag eireachdail ach duilich a dhèanamh. Agus, uill, aig an àm sin, bha ùidh againn ann am beannagan a chumadh sinn seasmhair san aimsir fhuar a bha gar dlùthachadh.

Am-bliadhna co-dhiù, ann an teas an t-samhraidh, thòisich sinn a’ smaoineachadh air lèis. Ach leis gur e obair fhada is mhòr beannag Shealtainneach lèis fhighe, cha do rinn sinn ach eisimpleirean beaga. Bha e spòrsail a bhith a’ fighe pìosan lèis cho àlainn, le bioran cho beag is snàth cho tana. Chan eil fhios a’m am bi càch a’ fighe bheannagan lèis Sealtainneach san àm ri teachd, ach tha mi fhìn toilichte a bhith a’ dèanamh mhiotagan blàth dha mo phiuthar.

Ma bhios ùidh agad ann an rudeigin beag liosach fhighe, seo ceangal gu pàtran snog an-asgaidh aig Blue Sky Fibers.

Cànan nan Eun

le Ted Neveln

Tha adhbhar eile agam a bhith ag ionnsachadh Gàidhlig. Bha mi air mo chuairt nuair a thòisich na starragan ’s na faoileagan a’ trod rium!

“Sgreamhail! Sgreamhail!” thuirt iad rium. “Ghoid thu ar biadh! biadh! biadh! Ghoid thu ar sgròm, sgròm, sgròm!”

“Nach sibhse a tha dàna!” fhreagar mi iad, anns a’ Bheurla. “Chuireadh sibh casaid orm ’s ur sgròban làn feòil nach leibhse. Cho luath ’s a bhiodh cothrom agaibh bhiodh mo cheapaire a-mach às mo làimh mus b’ urrainn dhomh fiù ’s fhaighinn faisg air mo bheul! Bhiodh ur guib làn mionaich à iseanan beaga neo-chiontach agus sibhse gur mionnachadh dhomh! ’S e spuinneadairean a th’ annaibh! Na cuiribh càs orm le ur casaidean.”

Abair sgrogaineach sgalanta sgriosail! Ach chan eil iad gam éisteachd. Mar sin, cuiridh mi saothair Gàidhlig ionnsachadh gus mo dhòn oir ’s i cànan nan eun.

A Note on ANA's Gaelic and English Orthography

ANA generally publishes articles in Gaelic using the Gaelic Orthographic Conventions published by the Scottish Qualifications Authority (www.sqa.org.uk/sqa/45356.html). However, articles employing older spelling are welcome, as are articles written in a particular Gaelic dialect (e.g., Cape Breton, Argyll).

For English articles, both British and American orthography are acceptable, as long as usage is consistent within the article.
